PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Hi Everyone,

Mother Nature has given us a couple hits with hurricane Hilary in Southern California, earthquakes in Ojai, and wildfires in Lahaina and Washington State. With last week's heat wave, I'm looking forward to spending some time in Morro Bay this week. A special thank you to Patty Hug and Jim Renze for securing reservations for us at Montana de Oro.

ETI National is looking for Area Directors (6 out of 10 vacancies). Please contact Tom Kirsch if you are interested in volunteering. Monthly Board Meetings can be attended via phone conference.

I'd like to take this opportunity to thank all of YOU who have helped make our events possible during these times, like our trail bosses and volunteers. We couldn't have done it without you!

We have some exciting rides/events coming up:

September 9th is our wine ride at the CRC Ranch in Temecula. Make your reservations now if you'd like to spend the night. You can make your reservation online at: <https://californiaranchcompany.com/general-store/ols/products/trailer-dry-camping/v/TRL-DRY-CMP-9-91>.

September 14th is our General Meeting, which will be held at Mandarin Terrace. We need a nominating committee for elections that will be held on November 16th.

Join the San Fernando Rangers October 5-8th on their annual Lone Pine Ride. This ride fills up fast so get your reservations in to Allan Johnson (flyer attached).

October 28th is our Moonlight ride in Lakeview Terrace led by Tiffanie Bailey. Overnight accommodations available.

November 18th is the Mulligan Stew Ride at Mojave Narrows Park in Victorville! This is always a fun ride. Please contact Billie McGuire for questions or additional information.

We will be setting up a date for a Trail Plan Meeting in October. The meeting will be at the Dohmens' beautiful home in Shadow Hills. Pizza will be provided by C22.

See you on the trail!

Kat

Recoveries:

Tom Kirsch is recovering from heart surgery. We missed him at the Spring ride, but he's recovering well. He's doing well and even felt good enough to do a road trip to visit his daughter in Oregon.

Funny Happenings:

Ruth had a close encounter with a rattlesnake and he lost! Ruth recounts, "he was coiled at the wire fence between neighbor and me - she's afraid of snakes and always calls me - no sense bothering the fire dept. I was about 4 or 5 ft away when I shot him- got him in the head - then cut off the head and rattles - threw body into trash. But in years past, cooked the snake after I cut it into pieces so my kids could taste it..kind of bland tasting. This guy was quite fat - that's a snake pole used to hold the snake away - shovels work also, and I keep one outside every door here"!

Volunteer Work:

A big shout out to Billie McGuire & Allan Johnson who participated in clean up day in the Big Tujunga wash on Saturday, August 19th. Awesome work out there!

Allan with Officer Godoy

HORSIN' AROUND

Horses & Heat!

It's summer, and the weather and barrel racing season are heating up — leaving you in a quandary. You have a green horse and your first race is just a week away. Yet the weather forecaster is predicting scorching temperatures and suffocating humidity. What's a rider to do? Give up on riding because of the oppressive heat, or continue working your horse while praying for the best?

Horses Do Sweat It

Horses and primates (including humans) are the only mammals that have sweat glands all over their bodies and use sweating as their primary means to cool down. As sweat evaporates from a horse's body, the water changes from a liquid to a gas while absorbing the heat from your mount's skin, leaving it cooler. Unfortunately, when the weather is humid, sweat can't evaporate as quickly and, thus, can't provide the cooling relief your horse requires. This could lead to heat stress or even life-threatening heat stroke in horses.

The Danger Zone

What are the signs that your horse is suffering from heat exhaustion or heat stroke?

Heat Exhaustion

- Temperature of 102 to 106 degrees Fahrenheit or above
- Profuse sweating
- Skin may feel cool even though the body temperature is elevated

Heat Stroke

- Skin is hot and dry
- Rapid breathing
- Temperature of 106 to 110 degrees Fahrenheit

If you believe that your horse is experiencing heat stress or heat stroke, stop riding immediately and remove its tack. Get your equine into a shady area, and then call your vet. While you're waiting for the veterinarian to arrive, start wetting your horse's body with cool — not cold — water. Begin with its hooves and legs, and work your way to its head. To prevent muscle cramping, try to walk your horse every five to 10 minutes, so that the heat can be released from its muscles. You should also allow your horse to drink small amounts of water every 15 minutes or so. Remember, though, never allow a too-hot-to-ride horse to drink a large amount of water all at once. This could lead to foundering or colic.

Avoiding Heat Stress

Have you ever wondered what temperature is considered too hot to ride? Most experts suggest using this formula to determine whether or not you should work your horse:

Add the temperature in Fahrenheit together with the percentage of relative humidity.

For example, if it's 80 degrees and the humidity is 50 percent, your number will be 130.

If your sum is ...

- Less than 130: Horses can be ridden if proper hydration is provided.
- 130-170: Be cautious. Your horse's ability to cool itself will be compromised by the heat and humidity.
- 170 or above: Don't ride. It only takes about 15 minutes of moderate exercise to raise your horse's temperature to a dangerous, potentially life-threatening level.

Even if your sum is below 170, consider waking up extra early to ride when it's hot. Riding when the weather is still cool and there are fewer biting insects to contend with can be ideal for you and your horse.

Finally, Keep Your Horse's Back Cool

Don't throw just any saddle blanket on your horse's back. Instead, choose a wool one. Compared to synthetic materials, wool boasts superior moisture-wicking properties that will help your horse's back remain cooler.

C22/C12 Morro Bay Camp Out

We had a great turn out at this year's Morro Bay camp out with Corral 22, Corral 12 and friends. Some of us arrived Thursday to join the group that had been camping since Monday. That evening we took the horses out for a short ride on the cable trail to the beach. For dinner we drove to Morro Bay to enjoy a sunset dinner overlooking Morro Rock. On Friday, two groups rode to the Sea Pines golf course for lunch. We split the group in two so all the horses were able to "park" in the corrals across from the golf course. The horses did great riding on the beach. They figured out it was easier to ride on the hard packed sand next to the horse-eating waves. After our ride, we grilled some steaks and celebrated Billie's birthday with cupcakes and a game of dog's body. On Saturday we rode the Canopy trail to the Spooner ranch house. We rode back on the Dune trail to the Hazard Peak trail and Bloody Nose trail back to camp. After getting the horses settled, we had some appies then grilled some pork chops for dinner. Billie made a delicious clam chowder from scratch. It was so good, even Tiffanie (who doesn't like fish let alone clams) liked it! We had a wonderful time hanging out with great friends in perfect weather!
